Cardiovascular Nursing -

American Nurses Association
2008-01-01

ANA and the American College of Cardiology Foundation convened an array of cardiovascular health experts to develop this succinct and practical guide. This completely updated document is unique, in fact, as a unifying effort due to participation and contribution of 16 nursing organizations whose constituency includes cardiovascular nurses.

Reflecting the cumulative work of three previous iterations (and including their content), this book is a foundational volume. It articulates the essentials of the specialty, its accountabilities and activities - the who, what, when, where, and how of its practice - for both specialists and generalists. The standards themselves - six for nursing practice and nine for nursing professional performance - are those by which all nurses in this specialty practice.

Together, along with each standard's set of measurement criteria, these reflect the perspectives and priorities of cardiovascular nursing. The book's summary discussion of the scope of such practice - its characteristics, development and trends, education and training, its practice environments and settings, its general and specialized practice roles, its ethical and conceptual bases - lends a broad context for understanding and using these standards. While

Cardiovascular Nursing: Scope and Standards of Practice is a reference and guide primarily for practicing nurses and nursing faculty and students, it is also an essential source document for other cardiovascular specialists, healthcare providers, researchers, and scholars, along with those involved in

Nursing Informatics - Marion J. Ball 2013-11-11

Nursing, like other health-related professions, is information-intensive. The quality of care a patient receives is based on the soundness of judgment exercised by the health care team. Underlying sound judgment is up-to-date information. Unless nurses have access to accurate and pertinent information, the care being rendered will not be of the highest standard. What is required is not necessarily more rapid and efficient information services. Modern technology can process immense amounts of data in the blink of an eye. What we in the health professions need are information systems that are more intelligent, systems that can integrate information from many sources, systems that analyze and synthesize information and display it so that it may be applied directly in patient care-in other words, information that answers a question or even gives practical advice. In order to accomplish such objectives, work is needed to establish the scientific and theoretical basis for the use of computing and information systems by health professionals. This is the research component. In addition, there is the need for continued development and evaluation of practical information systems.
